

IOSH Working Safely

IOSH Working Safely is a one-day course designed to give all employees a better understanding of the importance of safety in the work place. It is highly interactive and gives delegates a good, all round understanding of their duties as employees, hazard spotting, developing control measures and how they can contribute to the organisation's safety performance.

Who will benefit?

Working Safely is a one-day course. It is non-industry specific and is suitable for any employee and assumes little, or no prior training in health and safety.

Course Content

Module 1 – Introducing working safely

Why employees should work safely from a legal, moral and economic point of view.

Module 2 – Defining hazard and risk

Delegates will carry out a hazard spotting exercise and relate this to their own workplace. As part of the exercise the risks will be rated and control measures identified and introduced.

Module 3 – Identifying common hazards

Identifying hazards that exist in the workplace

Module 4 – Improving safety performance

Looking at how the company can improve its safety performance through organisational arrangements that form their safety management system.

Module 5 – Protecting our environment

Provides an introduction to waste and pollution. It explores ways in which companies and individuals can reduce pollution by cutting down on waste.
