

IOSH Managing Safely

Health and safety is a fundamental aspect of a manager's role in today's working environment. Our IOSH Managing Safely course is a three-day course designed for managers and supervisors, providing them with an appropriate knowledge of health and safety, allowing them to carry out their jobs effectively. The course is very interactive and there are lots of practical examples, making the course interesting and relevant.

Who will benefit?

Managing Safely is a three-day course. It is non-industry specific and is suitable for any managers and supervisors, bringing them up-to-speed with current health and safety requirements, helping them manage their legal responsibilities and guiding them through day-to-day aspects of safety management.

Course Content

Module 1 – Introduction and overview

Why employers have a responsibility for providing a safe working environment from a moral, economic and legal point of view.

Module 2 – Risk assessment

How to carry out a risk assessment and implement control measures, looking at accident prevention and occupational ill health. Delegates will carry out a risk assessment exercise.

Module 3 – Risk control

How to control risk and take a practicable approach to risk assessment.

Module 4 – Health and safety legislation

Looking at safety legislation, how it affects decisions in the work place and how our legal system works.

Module 5 – Common hazards

Identifying common hazards in the work place.

Module 6 – Investigating accidents and incidents

Identifying why accidents happen and how they should be investigated.

Module 7 – Measuring performance

Preparing basic performance indicators for monitoring and safety improvement.

Module 8 – Environment protection

Identify the basic requirements for the control of waste and pollution, its impact on employee safety and the wider community.
